

CATHETER AND OSTOMY SUPPLIES

We more often are concerned with incontinence, yet another important area of concern for many is urinary obstruction requiring the use of self-catheterization and for others moved to ostomy supply needs due to bowel injury or surgery.

What becomes important to the patient in this regard is the easy access to the supplies needed on a regular basis and sometimes near immediately. The following is one of likely many supply sources, but one that appears ready to help these patient needs on a timely and regular basis as well as assist with making sure one's insurance coverage will cover the products needed. I would like feed-back from patients who make use of this source to support my consideration that this source is reliable to satisfy patient needs.
